

Crying for the Pandemic

And the tears flowed on
People cried for their dead relatives, their dead friends
People cried for their sick relatives and sick friends
People cried for their lost jobs
Children cried for their lost classes and friends
People cried for their cancelled events
People cried for the closed stores and restaurants
People cried because they couldn't go anywhere
People cried because they couldn't touch anyone

Everybody cried and cried
From all over the world
Droplets of tears
Cascading down faces
Their tears filled up the oceans
Until there was no space left
And everyone had to stop crying.

Lisa Cohen
4/24/2020